YONGE OF CAYNTON, SALOP

ARMS:

CREST:

Caynton seems thereafter to have passed from father to son in the Yonge family until 1748.18

Thomas's son, Richard, was dead by 1423, his widow, Agnes, having evidently married Richard Peny, who was then named as lord. The Penys(both fl. 1431) each probably had a life interest, with reversion to Agnes's son,

Philip Yonge19(d. by 1463). Philip's son and heir was

William,20later knighted, who was living in 149721 and was followed by his son,

Francis. Francis lived until 1533 when, as lord of Caynton, his heir was his son,

William.22 At William's death without a son in 1565 the manor passed successively, under a settlement of 1553, to his brother, Thomas (d. c. 1570), vicar of Bampton (Oxon.), and a nephew, William Yonge.23

When William died in 1583 the manor passed to his son, also William,24 who died in 1598 and was succeeded as lord by his son, another

William.25 That William lived until 164726

and the manor presumably descended through his son, Philip (d. 1676),27

to the latter's son, William (d. 1705).28

It passed at William's death to his son, also William, who sold the manor to William Briscoe in 1748.29
